Introduction

What is Counseling ?

Counselling is a purposeful reciprocal relation between two people in which a trained person tries to overcome issues of another person so he/she can change himself/herself. In education, counselling is a collaborative process. In patient care, counselling is a method that helps clients and health care people to use problem solving approach to recognize and manage stress.

Motivation

- The advantage of Online Social Counseling is that the user does not have to call their relatives or search on google for a well-known consultant, instead he can visit our site and see the portfolio and experience of the consultant.

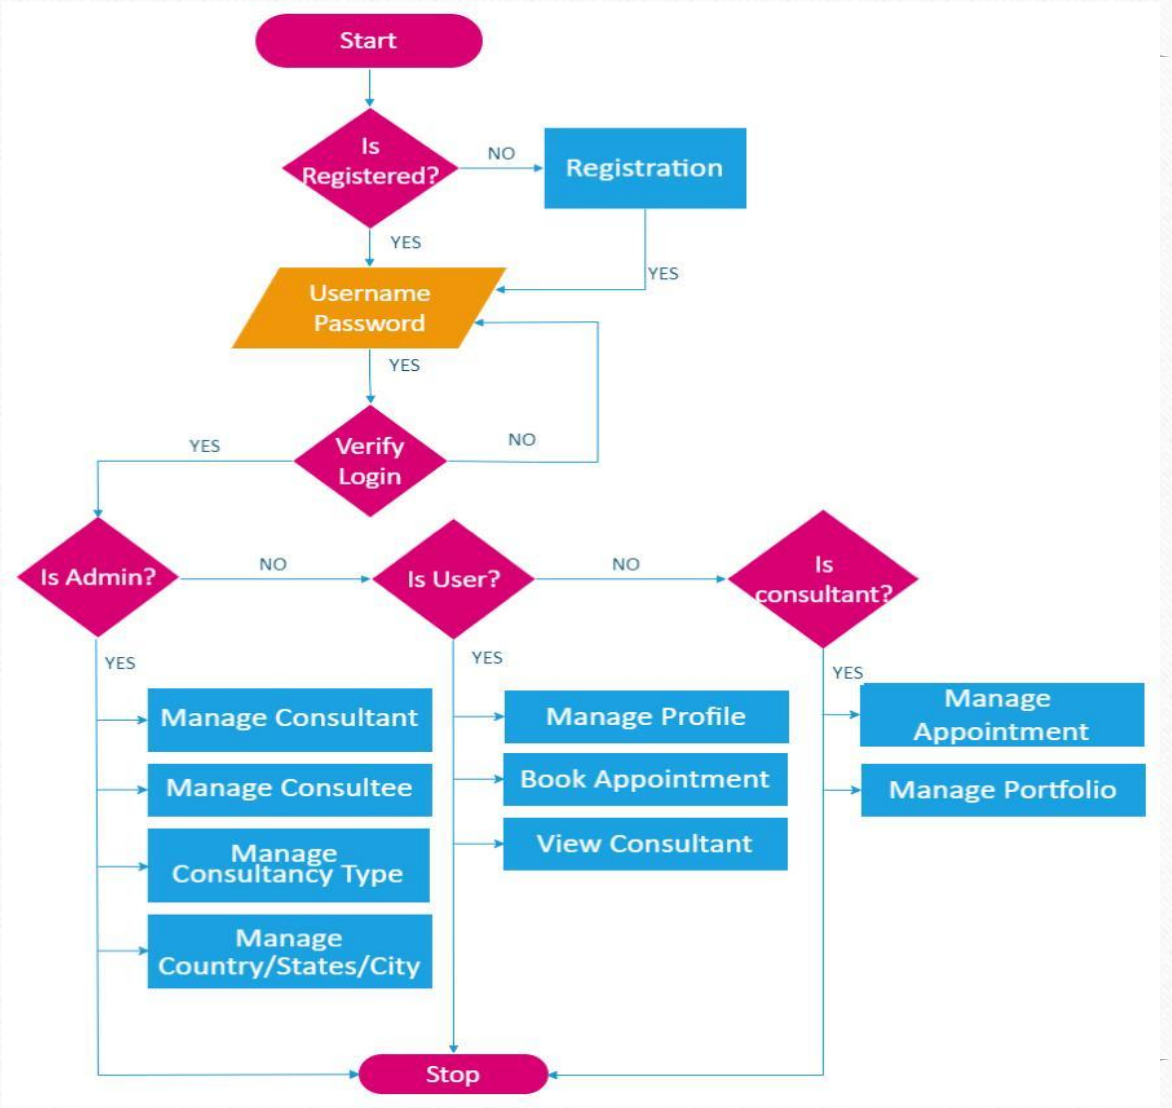
- By using this web application , many mentally depressed people can be helped as well as misguided students can have better perspective and can take a legal advice from a lawyer.

Objectives Achieved

- In Online Social Counseling a counselee can be treated by the counsellor from around the world that leads to vast numbers of experts.
- Moreover, Clients will able to look portfolio to have his/her choice of counsellor.

Work Flow

- This is the flow of how our application will work.



Methodology

- The application is build in Django framework.
- For frontend we have used Jinja Templates to show the dynamic data on user side.
- In backend the logic was implemented in class based view.

Functionality Approach

- For registration, login, appointment booking and portfolio we have used django model forms to provide all fields.
- For security we have implemented token authentication while login.
- To show filtered list we have implemented django-filters.
- For confirmation of slot booking a mail will be sent to user.
- For storing token after user registration we have implemented Django-channels.

Conclusion

- One of the major motives of Online Social Counseling is to let clients book their choice of consultant and by specifying the reason, the consultant can approve the appointment on priority basis.
- Also, in this covid-19 situation it gets way better to take stuffs online as to maintain social distancing and safety measures.

Future Extensions

- Will train a chat-bot for fully automatic recommending system for users.
- Will update the user through mail for every new registered consultant in nearby area.
- Will improve the booking slot functionality of the user.
